

THE

שקל

SHEKEL

The Journal of Israel and Jewish History and Numismatics
Volume 48 No. 1, January February March 2015

Anti-Semitic Medals

through history Part I

- WWII Holocaust notes donated
- Jonas Salk, pioneer researcher, honored on U.S. coin
- Electronic genius a challenge for history
- President's Message announces annual meeting

Published by the American Israel Numismatic Association, Inc.

*"The Shekel" - The American Numismatic Association's 2013 & 2014
"Outstanding Specialty Numismatic Publication"*

IMPORTANT COLLECTION
OF ANTIQUE
JUDAICA
WILL BE SOLD
JUNE 28 CALL
800-978-2646
FOR CATALOG

GOLDBERG
AUCTIONEERS

"A FAMILY TRADITION SINCE 1934"

11400 West Olympic
Blvd., Suite 800
Los Angeles, CA 90064

American Israel Numismatic Association

Website: www.theshekel.org

OFFICERS

Mel Wacks, President and Editor-in-Chief
Contact Mel via E-mail: ainapresident@gmail.com or call him: (818) 225-1348

Josh Prottas, Vice-President

Donna Sims, Treasurer

Roger Merritt, Secretary

GENERAL CONTACT

Donna Sims, P.O. Box 20255, Fountain Hills, AZ 85269

E-mail: dancinazdonna@gmail.com

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Donna Sims, Oded Paz, Marvin Kay, Walter Ostromecki Jr (2015)

Mel Wacks, Michael Mooney, David Hendin (2016)

Josh Prottas, Roger Merritt, Ira Rezak (2017)

EDITOR: The Shekel

Andrew Perala, PO Box 6626, Kamuela, HI 96743

E-mail: aperala@aol.com

EDITORIAL BOARD:

Mel Wacks (Chairman), Stephan Fregger,
Simcha Kuritzky, Ira Rezak

The American Israel Numismatic Association (AINA) was founded in 1968 as a non-profit educational organization dedicated to the study and appreciation of Israel's numismatics, past and present, and all aspects of Judaic numismatics. More information is available on our web site www.theshekel.org. Articles and Letters to the Editor are invited to be submitted to The Shekel Editor Andrew Perala. Advertisers: Annual ad rates are $750 for a full page and $200 for 1/5 page; please contact Mel Wacks.

2013 & 2014 American Numismatic Association First Place
Outstanding Specialty Numismatic Publication

THE SHEKEL

THE JOURNAL OF ISRAEL AND JEWISH HISTORY AND NUMISMATICS

VOLUME XLVIII NO. 1 (NO. 259)

JANUARY FEBRUARY MARCH 2015

ANDREW PERALA, EDITOR

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE5

HOLOCAUST
MONEY
DONATED.....6

U.S. COMMEMORATIVE COIN
HONORS JONAS SALK,
PIONEER RESEARCHER, LIFESAVER8

ANTI-SEMITIC MEDALS
THROUGH HISTORY,
A CHRONICLE OF SUFFERING

BY BENJAMIN WEISS.....12

IS CHARLES STEINMETZ, ELECTRONIC GENIUS, ELIGIBLE FOR THE JEWISH AMERICAN HALL OF FAME?

BY MEL WACKS39

TEL-AVIV STAMPS (Y.TSACHOR) LTD

MAIL AUCTION

Illustrated Catalogue - free on request

Auctions are Held twice a year

Palestine & Israel Coins & Bank Notes

Judaica, JNF, Holocaust

Autographs, Postcards

Palestine & Israel Philately

POBox 16218, Tel Aviv, Israel

Tel:(++)972-3-5226294,

Fax: (++)972-3-5245088

www.TelAvivStamps.com

Email: tastps@gmail.com

Palestine - 1 Pound, Brown unissued, WWII Emergency – proof print
Sold in our March 2012 Auction for a total of $ 29,000

Number One Money Man Judaica

Denmark Ag

High relief silver medal (45 grams - 40mm) commemorates 50th anniversary of Danish Jewish community escape from the clutches of Germans. Created by Danish artist, engraver and medalist Bent Jensen, this piece features a reverse of Holger Danske, a national hero, and an obverse with Jews between the maps of Denmark and Sweden.

Houghton

Works of Art from Houghton Jews - Hardcover Christie's London, 8 December 1994. Edition provides extensive information about Philip & Sybil Sassoon and their magnificent holdings. 361pp; near perfect condition; no folds, notations or markings. Unopened.

Herzl Passport

1850 Franz Joseph I official passport for Israel Herzl (24x40 cm). Sealed with signed revenue stamp, dated 1850. In 1815, Austria emerged from Napoleonic Wars as a powerhouse; the Hapsburgs returned to rule. This single-page passport (Reise-Pass) bears all information about Israel Herzl, including name, character, birthplace, birth year, religion, stature, hair color etc. All signed by the Gov. & General Commander of the Serbian region of Timis, western Romania and Banate, Southern Hungary. Finely printed in large format (about 9x16 inches) in blue with a decorative border. Document dated 1850, sealed with signed revenue stamp. Theodore (Tivadar/Binyamin Ze'ev) Herzl was born in Pest (the other side of Buda - Hungary), his family had come from Zemun (present day Serbia, by Belgrade on the Danube). But Herzl was a common name, so it could be a relative or not.

$500 CSA - LAZAR

Confederate $500 Sealed Jewish Lazar Allendale, S.C., Genuine CSA $500 note in nice, evenly circulated condition w/ a couple of holes by the Treasurer's signature; split/partially split sealed by an advertising band for Jewish A.H. Lazar ("THANK YOU - IT COMES FROM - CALL AGAIN - IT MUST BE QUALITY - THE PLACE TO TRADE AFTER ALL - ALLENDALE, SC")

CALL OR E-MAIL for PRICING, etc. to: #1, P.O. Box 4075, Ft. Myers, FL. 33918 / (239)-313-9899. E-mail: info@NumberOneMoneyMan.com
LIFE MEMBER OF: AINA, American Philatelic Society, IBNS, SPMC, etc.

INVITATIONS TO OUR ANNUAL MEETING AND TO RUN FOR THE AINA BOARD OF DIRECTORS

I am very pleased that this issue of The Shekel carries the first part of Benjamin Weiss' comprehensive article "A History of Anti-Semitic Bigotry as Chronicled by Commemorative Medals." Ben's article gives important insights on the ugly history of anti-Semitism, and is must-reading for anyone interested in Jewish or world history.

AINA members and the general public are invited to get together to schmooze at the annual AINA meeting held in conjunction with the American Numismatic Association's World's Fair of Money. The meeting will highlight Simcha Kuritzky's fascinating talk on Pidyon Haben (redemption of the first born male) tokens and coins, and the latest news from a representative of the Israel Coins & Medals Corporation. The AINA meeting and ANA convention will be held at the Donald Stephens Convention Center (near Chicago) on Thursday, August 13 from 1 to 3 p.m. I hope to see you there, and please stop by AINA's table in the bourse area, from August 11-15, and say "hello."

AINA members are invited to consider running for the Board of Directors. It is not a lot of work—it involves some emails each year and if possible, attending the AINA Board of Directors meeting at the ANA Convention in August. Qualifications are listed in the AINA By-laws, published at www.theshekel.org/aina-by-laws.html. The deadline for submitting your nomination is 30 days from receipt of this issue of The Shekel.

org/aina-by-laws.html. The deadline for submitting your nomination is 30 days from receipt of this issue of The Shekel.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

As many of you know, our editor Andy Peralta has been struggling with serious health issues over the past couple of years. He has continued to do a superb in editing, layout and design (and helping us win the ANA's "Outstanding Specialty Numismatic Publication" two years in a row), but has found it extremely difficult to meet our current publishing deadlines.

And so we are converting to a quarterly schedule, including one extra-large issue per year. I promise that The Shekel will continue to publish more articles on ancient Judaean coins, Jewish medals, Israel coins, etc. than any other American publication—and you still will enjoy reading every issue cover-to-cover.

All the best,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Mel".

DONATED HOLOCAUST MONEY

The Strassler Center for Holocaust and Genocide Studies at Clark University was the recipient of a collection of money that was used in Nazi concentration camps and work camps during the Holocaust.

The donated items included paper bills and coins used in Buchenwald, Litzmannstadt, Theresien-

Above: Money used in the Mittelbau Work Camp. Both notes were currency used in World War II concentration camps of the Holocaust and were donated to Clark University.

All images courtesy of Bob Messing

Continued

WW II MONEY OF GREAT HISTORIC VALUE

Continued

stadt, Westerbork, and Mittelbau.

The gift was presented in November, 2014, by Bob Messing, AINA Life Member 38, and Clark alumnus.

Messing has been collecting Jewish numismatic items for more than 55 years, including this collection.

This money has special significance to Bob because one quarter of his family perished during the Holocaust.

“This money should do more than be stored in an album that is rarely opened,” he said.

“What better place to share this history than my college alma mater?”

Clark University, in Worcester, MA, operates the only program in the world that trains students for Ph.D.

degrees in Holocaust History and Genocide Studies.

The Center’s director, Professor Deborah Dwork, accepted the gift from Bob. “This gift will affect generations of future students who will learn so much from these artifacts,” Dr. Dwork said.

Bob Messing reviewing his Holocaust money gift with Strassler Center for Holocaust and Genocide Studies Director Dr. Deborah Dwork

Money used in the canteen at the Buchenwald Concentration Camp.

The personal history of the donated money also will serve in other ways, both immediate and of much larger scale.

“When there are no Holocaust survivors left alive, these bills and coins will serve as visceral reminders of a terrible history,” Messing reflected. ▢

JONAS SALK

PIONEER

*DR. SALK IS THE FIRST JEWISH AMERICAN
EVER TO APPEAR ON A U.S. COIN, THE 2015 $1
MARCH OF DIMES COMMEMORATIVE*

Designs for the 2015 March of Dimes commemorative silver dollar were recently made public by the U.S. Mint and the March of Dimes Foundation.

In 2015, the Mint will sell up to 500,000 of the new coins, which mark the 75th anniversary of Roosevelt's 1938 creation of the organization to combat polio. It was originally called the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Roosevelt took the lead because of his own struggle with disease. A $10 surcharge will be added to the cost of each coin sold to raise money for the March of Dimes, which will be used to help finance research, education and health services aimed at improving the health of women, infants and children.

Sales of the March of Dimes Silver Dollar opened on March 13.

Jonas Edward Salk was born in New York City on October 28, 1914. After graduating from the

Continued on Page 10

The following designs, featuring Dr. Jonas Salk, were among those entered in the competition.

Can you pick the winning design for the March of Dimes commemorative silver dollar?

Continued

SALK MARCH OF DIMES $1 COIN

The official United States Mint Proof $1 coin honoring Dr. Jonas Salk and the March of Dimes campaign to save children is shown above. The Mint's Artistic Infusion Program artist Paul C. Balan designed the obverse, with Mint Sculptor-Engraver Michael Guardioso the sculptor. Mint Sculptor-Engraver Don Everhart designed sculpted the reverse.

Continued

City College of New York, he went on to be a research fellow at the University of Michigan. There he helped in the development of an influenza vaccine and served as a member of the US Army Influenza Commission. Moving to the University of Pittsburgh's School of Medicine, Salk became Research Professor of Bacteriology in 1949, Professor of Preventive Medicine 5 years later, and finally Professor of Experimental Medicine (1957-1963).

At the University of Pittsburgh, Salk did research into poliomyelitis, developing immunological methods to distinguish different types of the virus. He then developed a vaccine prepared by inactivating the virus. Massive field trials conducted by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in 1954 confirmed the effectiveness of the vaccine, which became the first weapon against the polio scourge. In the years immediately before mass inoculations with the Salk vaccine began, there was an average of 25,000 cases a year in the United States; in 1969 not a single death from polio was reported in the nation, and the disease has virtually been eradicated worldwide.

For his pioneering accomplishment, Dr. Salk received many honors and awards, including the Presidential Citation and the Congressional Medal for Distinguished Achievement. ▢

Bibliography: Numismatic News Express, November 25, 2014 and the Jewish-American Hall of Fame (www.amuseum.org/jahf).

FIRST TIME IN HISTORY

- First time a mint in China produces a numismatic piece with a Jewish theme.
- First time a Chinese mint etches every medal with a number for definitive identification.
- First time mint designer Rocky Zhao collaborates with his father, Qiming Zhao, the legendary engraver of Chinese paper money and stamps.

Rocky Zhao and Qiming Zhao present 92 year old Gary Matzdorff with etched set #39 in China. In 1939, Gary was fortunate to escape Germany and find refuge in Shanghai. In 1948, he settled in America.

Commemorating the 70th anniversary of the forceful relocations of \approx 18,000 European Jewish WWII refugees by the occupying Japanese into a restricted area, The Shanghai Ghetto.

QTY	OZ.	Metal	Pricepedia
36	5	Gold	PAN594A
570	1	Gold	PAN595A
5773	1	Silver	PAN596A

For more incredible details on the history of this series, inquiries and distribution info visit WhyNotCollectibles.com/ChinaFirst

ANTI-SEMITIC BIGOTRY

AS CHRONICLED BY HISTORICAL MEDALS

BY BENJAMIN WEISS

PART I

BIGOT: A person who is obstinately or intolerantly devoted to his or her own opinions and prejudices; especially one who regards or treats the members of a group (as a racial or ethnic group) with hatred and intolerance. Merriam-Webster.com 2013

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

While prejudice exists towards many religious and ethnic groups, over the ages bigoted acts against the Jews have been among the most prevalent, severe and unrelenting. This intolerance has manifested itself from the relatively inconsequential, such as slurs, insults and distribution of anti-Semitic paraphernalia (Eisler, 2014), to the devastating, including confiscation of property, expulsion from countries, and mass slaughter.

Volumes have been written about anti-Semitism and its effects, but the question still remains as to the root causes of anti-Semitic attitudes: Why have they existed for centuries, and how have they been passed on from generation to generation? This article will attempt to examine this issue using historical medals as a backdrop and primary source of information.

Although the word anti-Semitism did not exist prior to the race theory of the 19th century, the sordid history of anti-Semitic acts and of using Jews as scapegoats goes back hundreds of years and has taken many forms: religious, economic,

Continued

JEWS BURNED AT THE STAKE: Between 1348 and 1351 Bubonic plague swept through Europe, killing about one-third of the population. Although it is now known that it is a bacterial disease carried by rat fleas, at that time Jews were accused of causing the plague in order to destroy Christianity. This accusation spread through many cities in Europe, inciting the people to burn thousands of Jews at the stake. The illumination at right, from a medieval manuscript, depicts Jews (identified by the mandatory yellow Jewish badge and Jewish hat) of Ravensburg being burned at the stake during the plague in 1348.

*Luzerner Schilling, 1515; (Eban, 1984
Burgerbibliothek, Lucerne*

Continued

social, racist, ideological and cultural. As many of the populace were illiterate at the time, various art forms, such as paintings, drawings and in some cases medals were often used to spread these calumnies.

Among the more common types of slanders against the Jewish community throughout the ages were the false accusations that they caused wide-spread diseases and other natural or man-made disasters. An example of one such charge is that Jews were responsible for the Black Death, which killed as many as 200 million people in Europe during the fourteenth century, and for which Jews were blamed and many burned alive.

These and a multitude of other false accusations of Jews have resulted in oppression and abuse of the Jewish community almost beyond belief.

The persecution and extermination of Jews in the modern times of Nazi Germany during the Holocaust are well documented (Friedlander, 1997; Holocaust 2014), but these more recent events have a history of their own, in that the murder and mass relocation of Jews have taken place not only in early and mid-20th century Germany but in virtually every country in Europe for more than a millennium (Oberman, 1984).

Indeed, a chronological survey of anti-Semitism shows that anti-Semitic acts occurred throughout the world and encompassed dozens and dozens of periods, dating from the third century BCE through to the present time [see A Brief Chronology of anti-Semitism (web.archive)]. These atrocities are often reflected in historical medals designed and issued to purposely vilify the Jewish community.

Continued

Continued

Indeed, anti-Semitic medals are probably the most common and most notorious of all the medals that have been minted for spreading religious hatred, a topic that has been considered in great detail by Daniel Friedenberg in his book, Jewish Medals: From the Renaissance to the Fall of Napoleon (1503-1815), and Bruno Kirschner in his work, Deutsche Spott-Medaillen Auf Juden, in which dozens of anti-Semitic medals are chronicled.

On these medals, Jews are sometimes depicted as causing natural calamities such as famine, plague, etc. Often they are portrayed as demonic, non-human creatures or profiting financially from the misfortunes of others. In different periods of history Jews were forced to convert to Christianity, and if they did not their properties were seized and their persons expelled, tortured or murdered. Medals were made to support these statements as well.

While it is generally known when and by whom anti-Semitic medals were made, it is difficult to determine definitively why they were manufactured, how many were struck, to whom were they distributed and what was their impact. A few of the author's colleagues graciously offered their opinion on these matters as follows:

“At times of economic strife such as famine or general misfortune, the Jew becomes an easy scapegoat and this no doubt fed interest in the kind of anti-Semitic medals produced by Christian Wermuth and Johann Christian Reich in the 18th century. To judge from the numbers and variety - with many carrying graphic illustrations - they clearly found a ready market, distributed as they much have been through a network of retail outlets.” (Christopher Eimer, personal communication).

“In general, it is likely most of the Kornjudenmedaillen of the 17th and 18th centuries were made as popular souvenirs and were sold by their artist/manufacturers, such as Wermuth and Reich.

They incorporated prejudices and iconographic references to popular beliefs then current which would have resonated with the purchasers, presumably wealthy peasant landowners and merchants concerned with hard times, famines, rising costs of living etc. To judge from the number of specimens available in the later collector's market places, they were made in substantial quantities, likely many hundreds rather than fewer than a hundred, or tens of thousands.

In several cases, the dies for their manufacture survived for many years and were sometimes re-used into the 19th century, by which time the purchasers would have been secondary collector types. For example, some Kornjudenmedaillen were made in iron, a technique that post-dates their 1694 date by a century or more.” (Ira Rezak, personal communication).

Continued

Continued

“Some medals were officially sanctioned, others were privately commissioned and still others were commercial undertakings aimed at collectors or designed to appeal to the wider public. Often those that were issued as a commercial enterprise reflected the biases and politics of the medalists. Estimating the numbers struck is very difficult, but it is probably reasonable to assume that mintages were in dozens or hundreds with just a few exceptions being much higher. This is based on the few instances where we know mintages and comparing the relative rarity of others.

“Generally medals were a fairly expensive luxury, which few could afford and fewer still could appreciate due to low rates of literacy and education. Another limitation was on the technical side, since the striking of medals, especially in high-relief, was labor-intensive and dies were vulnerable to breaking (as demonstrated by the several die varieties of some common medals of the period).” (Hedley Betts, personal communication).

Many of the medalists of that period, including Christian Wermuth, worked as entrepreneurs. They sold the medals to private and public clients on their own initiative. There must have been a good market for the medals made by anti-Semitic manufacturers during the 17th and 18th centuries. We know, for example, that Christian Wermuth issued a list called a “specification, which was a price list of the medals he had for sale.” (Christian Stoess, personal communication).

Even if there were a limited number of such medals distributed, by giving them to individuals of influence - the merchant class, aristocracy, nobility, clergy - these medals would nevertheless have had a significant impact. And their intent was clear; medals were issued either to support the denigration of the Jews or to memorialize their vilification. Examples of some of these, shown below, are the subject of this discourse.

ANTI-SEMITIC, SLANDEROUS MEDALS RELATED TO CULTURE

Grain Jew (Korn Jude) Medals

As Friedenbergs points out, one of the first of these anti-Semitic medals was reported in the early 16th century in Germany. These medals depicted, on the obverse, the Jew riding on a sow, and on the reverse, the face of a devil with horns, representations not uncommon in the medieval period (Lipton, 2014).

By the end of the 17th century a more common type of anti-Semitic medal made its appearance. These were the so-called “Korn Jude” (Grain Jew) medals. Most of these were struck in Germany and were

Continued

A Korn Jude (Grain Jew) Medal by Christian Wermuth, Germany, 1694. Silver struck medal, 36 mm Ref: Friedenber, p 3; Kirschner 54/18; Wohlfahrt 95035; Weiss Benjamin Weiss Collection issued in various forms over a period of some 80 years. Apparently they were engraved largely, if not exclusively, by only two men: Christian Wermuth (1661 to 1739) and later by Johann Christian Reich (1740 to 1814).

Continued

Generally, Korn Jude medals were distributed coincident with periods of rising food prices and famine and were designed to perpetuate the myth that the Jews were to blame for these hardships and to portray Jews as diabolic speculators, particularly in grain crops.

To set the stage for the first of these medals we will consider, in 1694, heavy rains and a grasshopper plague swept throughout Germany. Food prices increased, speculation rose and the starving people blamed the Jews. This provided the raison d'être for the issuance of one of the prototypical Korn Jude medals.

These medals were not subtle in their design or meaning. The medals Wermuth made usually depicted on the obverse a figure carrying on his back a sack of grain on which is perched a devil opening the mouth of the sack, thereby allowing the grain to pour uselessly onto the ground.

So that there should be no misunderstanding these devices, the legend clearly identified the figure as DU KORN IUDE (You Grain Jew), with the legend below translated as “Famine Time” or “Expensive Time.”

The reverse, invoking the powerful instrument of Scripture, shows a grain sifter inscribed with a quotation taken from the Old Testament: Proverbs, XI. 26, indicated in the exergue (Exergue: An area on the lower portion of many medals beneath a horizontal line that separates it from the principal design of Kornjudenmedaille “Grain Jew” Medal of Woman and Grain Peddler by Johann Christian Reich, Germany, 1772, Struck pewter or similar, 38 mm. Ref: Kirschner-28 (variant); JM-118 ; Brettauer-1905.

Continued

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

the medal and which usually contains lettering or symbols related to the subject of the medal), and translated as “He That Withholdeth Grain, the People Shall Curse Him: but Blessing Shall Be upon the Head of Him That Selleth it.”

Almost a century later, between 1770 and 1772, there was another period of famine and high inflation in Germany, in which hundreds of thousands of people in Bohemia and Saxony starved to death. Again the Jews were blamed and corresponding medals were issued, those now produced largely by Johann Christian Reich. Like Wermuth, Reich also made several varieties of such KORNJUDE medals, often in base metals and no less virulently anti-Semitic than those of Wermuth.

One of which, struck in 1772, is shown above. On the obverse we see a small figure of a housewife with raised arms imploring grain from a larger, heavy Jewish grain peddler. The peddler is carrying the obligatory sack of grain on which rides the figure of the devil, cutting a hole in the sack, causing grain to spill on the ground. The reverse shows the usual grain sifter with a legend from Proverbs 11.26.

Though working about 80 years later, Reich produced medals with iconography similar to that produced by Wermuth, apparently appealing to the same audiences and customers.

Reich produced more such medals or jetons (a jeton is a token or small, coin-like medal) with the same basic theme, one of which is shown on next page. As with others of this period, on this medal a Jewish grain peddler is seen, carrying on his back a sack spilling grain on the ground. On the sack sits a horned, goat-like devil. The peddler is walking toward the jaws of a

Continued

Corn Jew - Expensive Time by Johann Christian Reich, Germany, 1772, pewter (?) jeton, 29 mm. Ref: Brettauer-1908; Friedenberg 120; Kirschner-24, variant.

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

toothed, alligator-like monster, representing hell. The legend reads in German, AKORNIUD VER ZWEIFEL UND GEH ZUM (with the words disappearing into the mouth of a monster/hell). The meaning is interpreted as: “Grain Jew: Despair and Go to Hell.” (Geh zum Teufel is a common German expression that amounts to “go to hell.”) The word “Teufel” is not shown but is suggested by the image of the mouth of hell (in the form of a rebus) and its rhyme with “Zweifel.” (A rebus is an allusional device that uses pictures to represent words or parts of words).

The exergue below reads THEUREZEIT 1772 (“Expensive Time 1772”). On the reverse is a horizontal grain sifter with an inscription translated as: “Fear God” and the same biblical saying as on the others of this type of medal.

Over the years still more variants of the obverses and reverses of Du Korn Jude medals were struck, the particular devices and inscriptions dependent upon whether grain crops were plentiful or scarce.

In years of famine, such as in 1694 and 1772, the reverse inscription implied that the Jews were hoarding grain (see above). In other years, such as in 1695, when grain was plentiful, Korn Jude medals were modified in order to continue the calumny against the Jews even in times when there was an abundant harvest and grain was less expensive.

In these cases, on the obverse, instead of Famine Time the medal was now stamped in German Inexpensive Time.

A gruesome Inexpensive Time medal was struck in 1695. On the obverse is a scene showing in the background a rich cornfield and barn with a nesting stork on the

Continued

Hanging Korn Jude (Inexpensive Time) medal by Christian Wermuth: Germany, 1695. Silver struck medal, 34 mm. Ref: Friedenberp p. 5; Kirschner 25

Image courtesy Busso Peus Nacht

Continued

roof. In the foreground is a Jew hanging from a fruit-laden tree, with the devil securing a rope around his neck. On the barn is inscribed LUC 12, referring to a chapter in Luke, Chapter 12, in which Jesus relates the Parable of the Rich Fool: "...There was a rich man whose land produced a bountiful harvest. He asked himself, 'What shall I do, for I do not have space to store my harvest?' And he said," 'This is what I shall do: I shall tear down my barns and build larger ones. There I shall store all my grain and other goods...'

In the exergue is inscribed: WO[H]LFEILEZEIT (Inexpensive Time) 1695. The reverse shows a grain sifter, with the inscription again that attacks covetousness, the exact same sentiment and iconography as on the medal issued in times of famine, the first medal depicted in this article. In all cases, the medals of this type were inscribed on the obverse with the usual DU KORN IUDE (You Grain Jew).

Kirschner suggests that the meaning of the medal is that the Jew is wishing for a fruitful harvest, but that the grain should still be expensive so he could make exorbitant profits.

Another example of an "Inexpensive Time" Korn Jude medal is shown on the next page. This piece, struck in 1772-1773 shows a Jew with stacks of grain, ignoring the pleas of a woman. The legend (translated) reads, "Poverty Is Weeping While the Grain Jew Is Laughing."

The reverse shows the Jew hanging from a tree with a grain harvest in the background, the legend, again taken from Scripture to give it more impact, reading "Avarice Is the Root of All Evil."

Several variants of these types of medals were issued during the

Continued

Top: Inexpensive Time: Hanging Korn Jude Medal by unknown medallist: Germany, 1772-1773, Lead cast medal, 40 mm. Ref: Friedenberg 8; Kirschner no. 27, p. 61. Private collection period of the late 17th century and early 18th century. Some had images similar to the obverse shown in this article's first medal, some with the hanging Jew, shown at top, with an abundance of grain, implying once again that the Jew is benefitting from the plentiful grain, and some with variations of these obverses but shown with the grain sifter on the reverse.
 Above: Kornjude Style Naked Jew on Grain Bushel, 1923 by [Friedrich Wilhelm] Fritz Hörnlein; Germany, 1923, Aluminum struck medal, 38 mm Ref: Kirschner 30.

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

In all these medals the principal figure is clearly identified as DU KORN JUDE.

Although these medals might be viewed as ancient history, having been made centuries ago, inflammatory medals denigrating Jews are still being produced. One such medal, issued in 1923, shown above, and reissued as recently as 1993 shows on the obverse a "fat"

Continued

Feather Jew Medal by Christian Wermuth or Johann Reteke: Germany, c.1650, silver struck medal, 42x46 mm (oval). Ref: Kirschner Nr. 13 (non variant); Friedenberg 11/12 and 112 ; Brettauer 4765 & plate 23.

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

man sitting on a bushel of grain. As the legend is “Whether Jew or Christian - a Scoundrel,” one can interpret it as treating Jews and Christians equally, but because of the history of these types of medals Kirschner considers this to be a modern Korn Jude medal. The reverse legend translates as: “In Time of Evil, Without a Doubt, a Human Is Often the Other Devil.”

Feather Jew (Feder Jude) Medals

Another type of German anti-Semitic medal is the so-called Feather Jew Medal (Federjudenmedaille). Like the Korn Jude medals, the Feather Jew medals were made at different times and had slightly different iconography. One such medal, oval, and struck in silver about 1650, is shown above. The obverse depicts a hunched-over Jew with a feathered cap holding a bag on which is engraved a Latin legend translated as “Alien Way of Life.”

As is typical with these types of medals, he is shown carrying a large moneybag on his back. The Latin inscription below is translated as “His Own Faults.” The reverse shows an image of a winged Cupid on a lion, with a Latin legend translated as “Love Conquers All.”

Kirschner and Friedenberg interpret the symbolism of medal’s obverse to mean (citing Matthew 7) that the Jew is a Pharisee, and as he judges others, so shall he be judged; and on the reverse (alluding to the Tale of Cupid/Amor and Psyche), that even Jews can be conquered by love.

As in the case of the Korn Jude medals, several variants of these Feather Jew medals were made, all of which, through imagery and words, were designed to imply that Jews use deceitful measures

Continued

Feder Jude (Feather Jew) Medal by Christian Wermuth, Germany, c.1700. Silver struck medal, 43 mm, Ref: Kirschner 41/11; Friedenberg p.111.

Image courtesy Busso Peus Nacht

Continued

to attain public offices. The medal shown at the top of this page was engraved by Christian Wermuth around 1700. This typical example depicts on the obverse a merchant, wearing a feathered hat and boots, peering into a moneybag. As on the previous medal, on his back is tied a large sack on which is inscribed (translated) “His Own Faults.”

The legend around is written in German, translated as “I Wear the Feathers Which Everybody Can See; Another Wears Them as a Decoy.” Again, there is no doubt whom the figure represents, as the legend below, in a mixture of German and Latin, is inscribed “Hey Thou Feather Jew, Know Thyself.”

On the reverse, the legend implies that Jews advance their careers by being a cuckold (i.e., a husband with an adulterous wife), a somewhat loose translation being: “By

Being Cuckolded Alone [You Will] Not Be Held up to Ridicule, for this Is Certainly Most True That Many People, Through Their Horns [i.e., through their cuckolding], and “According to the Common People, the Wife Allowed the Husband to Rise to Public Office.” That is, the cheating woman puts the horns on the husband. (The word SCOPTJCE on the reverse may be translated as: sarcastic, derisive, and ironical).

Another variation of an anti-Semitic medal of the “Feder Jude” (Feather Jew) series, made in Germany in the 18th century, is shown on the next page.

This rare version shows on the obverse a figure riding a deer with a German inscription around it, translated as, “I Wear Horns So That All Can See, Another Wears Such (horns), but Is Unaware of Doing so.” The Latin inscription, below

Continued

Above: Feder Jude by unidentified medallist, Germany, c.1700. White metal, struck medal, 40 mm. See also: Friedenberg, pp.9-12. Image courtesy Kedem Auction House
 Below, right: Cuckold or Feather Jew Medal by Christian Wermuth, Germany, ca 1700, struck pewter medal, 39mm. Ref: similar to Feill, 3431. Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued
 the deer, also alluding to cuckoldry, can be translated as, “Let Him Who Has Made Horns Not Refuse to Wear Horns” (meaning: “Let the one who has committed adultery not refuse to wear the symbol of adultery when he is cuckolded himself.” The reverse inscription is the same as on the previous medal.

Still another “Cuckold Medal” with the “Feather Jew” motif is shown at right. The obverse of this one depicts a two-antlered Jew riding a large cock, with four smaller roosters in the background. The German legend rim reads “Where No One Can Become Someone.”

The reverse shows an ornately decorated open chest with a pair of antlers, the legend reading, “DIE LADE FVHRT DIE GROSTE ZVNFFT AVF ERDEN” and below in smaller letters “VM MANCHEN IST ES EWIG SCHADE” (“The Clouds Drove the Guild off the Ground, to Some it Is a Shame Forever.” The German legend on box reads “DAS ER KOMT/ IN

DIE/ HAHNREY/LADE.”

This piece closely resembles the previously described anti-Semitic,

Continued

Pietism / Camel-Swallower Medal by Christian Wermuth, Germany, 1687, Silver struck medal, 42mm. Ref: Kirschner 4; Friedenberg 12 and 109; Feill #3928 (p.186 & photos XIII).

Image courtesy Tradart

Continued

satirical “Feather Jew” medals, all of which played on the alleged sexual activities and financial prowess Jews used to achieve power and money.

The feathers shown in these Feder Jude medals substitute for horns depicted on Jews in other works of “art.” Both of them imply cuckolding and likely serve as a double entendre for the horns of lechery and horns of the devil.

Daniel Friedenberg describes another medal, made by Christian Wermuth around 1700, titled “False Integrity of Jews, Bad Priests and Tricky Lawyers,” which seemed to be designed to provide a general insult to Jews as well as to Catholics. This type of medal shows a wolf and a fox in open country, with sheep in the background. The reverse has a German inscription translated as “He Who Trusts a Wolf in the Woodland, a Jew by His Oath and a Bad Priest and Tricky Lawyer by Their Consciences, Will Be Bitten by All Four.”

One more piece made by Wermuth that may be mentioned here also appears to be designed to denigrate those who do not follow the predominant Lutheranism of Germany, in this case Jews and Muslims. It is the so-called Camel-Swallower or Pietism medal. (Pietism was a movement within Lutheranism that began in the late 17th century and ultimately influenced Protestantism and Anabaptism, as well as the Methodist and Brethren movements.)

This medal, shown above, shows on the obverse an “African” dwarf swallowing a camel while gnats swarm about, the German legend translated as “Catcher of Gnats and Camel Swallower,” referring to passages from Matthew 24 in the New Testament which read, in part:

“Woe unto you, scribes and

Continued

Continued

Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye tithe mint and anise and cummin, and have left undone the weightier matters of the law, justice, and mercy, and faith: but these ye ought to have done, and not to have left the other undone. Ye blind guides, who strain out the gnat, and swallow the camel!”

The reverse depicts a Jew draped in a prayer shawl, the German legend reading “The Pharisee Risen from Death.”

The Pharisees were a social movement and school of thought that arose in the Holy Land during the Hasmonean dynasty (140 to 37 BCE) in the wake of the Maccabean Revolt.

After the destruction of the Second Temple in 70 CE, Pharisaic beliefs became the liturgical and ritualistic basis for modern Rabbinic Judaism.

Below the figure of the Jew is stamped “Matth:XXIII.”, a reference again to Matthew “Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye compass sea and land to make one “proselyte; and when he is become so, ye make him twofold more a son of hell than yourselves... because ye shut the kingdom of heaven against men: for ye enter not in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering in to enter... for ye devour widows’ houses, even while for a pretense ye make long prayers: therefore ye shall receive greater condemnation...”

By alluding to Jews, Muslims (depiction of a camel) and native Africans, and by referencing those passages in the New Testament, this medal not only serves as an insult to these groups but also may suggest that they are ripe targets for conversion to Christianity.

Daniel Friedenbergh observes that this medal may have had some official status as the rim is often stamped CFP, standing for Cum Friderici Privilegio or With Frederick’s Permission, referring to Frederick II of Saxony and Thuringia, who was Wermuth’s ruler at that time.

Alex Ben-Ariah notes that Wermuth may be mocking the events of recent history in his time: the Muslim Ottoman Empire was favorably disposed towards the Jews, particularly since the Spanish Inquisition of 1492 in which both Muslims and Jews were expelled from Spain.

In 1683, four years prior to this medal’s striking, the then mighty Ottoman Empire lost a key military campaign at the Battle of Vienna to the combined Holy Roman Empire, Hapsburg, German and Polish forces, which eventually led to its withdrawal from most of Europe.

SATIRICAL, ANTI-SEMITIC MEDALS RELATED TO ECONOMICS

In the course of the Middle Ages,

Continued

Jewish moneylenders portrayed in a Spanish manuscript from the late 1200s.
From dancutlermedicalart.com

Continued

the power structure in Europe gradually ousted Jews from the fields of trade, crafts and agriculture, forcing them to serve as bankers and tax collectors for the nobility. Also, since the church forbade Christians to lend money at interest, some Jews became money lenders, one of the few occupations left open to them.

Because Jews were required by law to pay exorbitantly high taxes to the aristocracy, the Jewish moneylenders were allowed to charge high rates of interest. Thus, the wrath of the debtors was aimed at the Jews, rather than against the ruling classes. Jews were, therefore, often looked upon disparagingly, and one of the common charges levied against them relate to their association with money lending, commerce and banking.

An example of a page from a manuscript, published in the 13th century, portraying an encounter between a loan seeker and a Jewish money lender is shown above.

Several medals were also issued to vilify Jews engaged in other financial occupations. Examples of such medals follow.

In the late seventeenth century the Austrian emperors began a campaign to remove the Ottoman Turks from Central Europe. Budapest fell to Leopold I in 1686. The Jews, who had found refuge among the Muslim Ottoman Empire sided with the Turks in defense of Budapest (known in those days as “Ofen,” referred to on the medal), and when the city fell, the victorious Austrians commemorated their victory by issuing a medal suggesting how the vanquished Turks and Jews benefit-

Continued

Jews and Turks Defend Budapest (Türkenkrieg medaille) by Martin Brunner: Austria, 1686. Copper struck medal, 42 mm, Ref: Kirschner 31, Freidenberg 18 and 108/109.

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

ted financially from the war.

The medal shown above depicts on the obverse Turkish and Jewish figures around a furnace melting metal, with the Turk holding tongs and the Jew holding bellows. Ingots appear at the bottom of the furnace. The legend around translates as “Who Mints Money for Peace Now That the Turk and Jew Are Tired of War?”

The reverse legend reads “Ofen Belongs to Leopold. Luck Has Been Against Mohammed. He Loses the City of Ofen with All its Gold, Which Was Destined to Be Used for the Purchase of Peace.”

Along the rim is written, “By this Battle the Turkish Empire Nears its End.”

This medal expresses scorn for both the Jews and Turks by suggesting that they not only had profited from the war but also failed to bribe their attackers and thereby buy peace (a method used frequently in those times). It is typical of the anti-Semitic medals relating to economics in that it alludes to the libel of Jews making money from tragic events.

Unlike the medals made in Germany, this is the only Austrian anti-Semitic medal from the period of the Renaissance until the era of Napoleon. It may be added that after this conquest, the Ottoman Empire retreated from mainland Europe while the Jews were driven out of the city and were not permitted to return for almost a century (Ben-Arieh).

Another medal issued to denigrate the role of Jews in finance is shown above. It was designed to celebrate the mistreatment of one particular Jew, Joseph Suskind Oppenheimer (1698 to 1738).

Oppenheimer, called “the Jew Suess,” was a Jewish banker, fi-

Continued

Jud Joseph Süs in Birdhouse (“Vogelhaus”). Unknown medallist: Germany, 1738, white metal/pewter struck medal, 38 mm. Ref: Fieweger 392; Kirschner 15; Friedenberg 115.

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

nancial planner and finance minister for Duke Karl Alexander of Wurtemberg. In the course of his career, Oppenheimer incurred many enemies, and when Karl Alexander died in 1737, Oppenheimer was charged, imprisoned and hanged. His body was subsequently thrown into a bird cage where it hung for six years.

The medal shows on the obverse a bust of Oppenheimer, labeled “Jew Joseph Suess Oppenheimer.” On the reverse is depicted the “Jew Suess” enclosed within a hanging birdcage suspended from gallows with birds flying around, the inscription reading, “From this Birdcage the Rascal Suess Looks Out.”

The public joy associated with Oppenheimer being brought to “justice” was so great that several other medals related to this event were issued at about the same time.

Another medal, not shown here, depicts on the obverse a bust of Oppenheimer, similar to that above. On the reverse are two portrayals of Oppenheimer’s life. On the top section he is shown being drawn gloriously on an elegant four-horse chariot, while on the section below, he is being carted off to his death unceremoniously on a horse-drawn wagon.

Another medal was a box or screw medal, containing nineteen miniature pictures, which were hand-painted on parchment or tiny copper plates, of the life and death of Joseph Oppenheimer, shown on following page.

These screw medals were so popular that they continued to be made up to the 19th century (Kirschner).

A striking feature of all of these medals is that in the legend Oppenheimer is not identified as a banker or finance minister, but as a Jew (IUD.IOSEPH.SÜS OPPENHEIMER),

Continued

Pictures Contained in Screw Medal of Jud Joseph Süß Oppenheimer

The top and bottom of this box or screw medal are similar to those of the obverse and reverse of the medal shown on the previously pictured medal. The screw medal contains 19 tiny images of Suess' romantic life and his trial and hanging. Ref: Friedenbergs, p. 20.

Image courtesy Tradart

Continued

making his religious affiliation, rather than his occupation, the major point of his character.

The historical figure of Joseph Süß Oppenheimer was deemed so important that in 1940, at the behest of Joseph Goebbels, the Nazis produced a propaganda film "Süss the Jew," considered to be one of the most anti-Semitic films of all time. The film ends showing Süß being hanged in a cage similar to that depicted in the medal.

Interestingly, Oppenheimer, who virtually ceased to acknowledge being a Jew during the period of his prosperity, returned to strict orthodoxy during his imprisonment and refused to become baptized in return for a reprieve. Medals related to conversion and baptism is considered in the next section.

MEDALS RELATED TO RELIGION

Blood Libel Medals. "Blood Libels" are a group of slanders against the Jews which have as its origins passages from the New Testament of the Bible. (For more on the religious origin of this term, see below).

Besides holding Jews responsible for such global calamities as famine and plague, it was not unusual to blame them for defilement of Christian religious objects, such as the consecrated wafers used ritually in the Catholic Mass (the Host). The accusation and murder of Jews by burning them alive for the alleged desecration of the Host have been promoted in several forms of art, some of which go back to medieval times. (See above).

Continued

Burning of Jews for the Supposed Desecration of Sacramental Wafers in Deggendorf, Bavaria, 1492. Woodcut by Hartmann Schedel for the Nuremberg Chronicle, known as Schedelsche Weltchronik, published in 1493. Wikipedia

Continued

In 1837 a medal was issued that celebrated an anniversary of a similar supposed desecration of the Host by Jews, in this case one that was said to have occurred 500 years earlier in Deggendorf, Germany.

As the story goes, in 1337 Jewish guests at a Christian gathering were accused of stealing and attempting to destroy the Hosts by placing them in a bag of poison and sinking them into the local well, an act resulting in the death of several townsfolk. The consecrated wafers were retrieved from the well, placed in a chalice in the church, and in the ensuing anger, the Jewish community was slaughtered.

Five hundred years later, a medal was distributed memorializing the event. Pilgrimages to the Deggendorf church continued until the ritual was abolished in 1992.

Deggendorf Church Host Desecration: 500th Anniversary by unknown artist, Germany, 1837, Pewter struck medal, 44 mm. The legend on the obverse may be translated as "In Memory of the 500 Year Anniversary of the Healing in Grave Church, Deggendorf 1837." The reverse depicts a candelabric image of a Church altar with a German legend around reading, "Tomb of Christ Deggendorf Branch Church of Healing 1837." Kirshner, 3.

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

450th Anniversary of the Desecration of the Host, unknown artist, Belgium, 1820. Struck brass, 32 mm, Ref: Kirshner, p.31 (variant); Friedenbergs p.20. Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

A related charge of the abuse of the Host, this one made against the Jews of Brussels in the 14th century, was memorialized in 1820, some 450 years later, by the issuance of a medal shown above.

In 1370 a group of Jews from Enghien, Belgium, were accused of stealing and desecrating the Host. Angry mobs killed hundreds of Jews in Brussels, many of whom were burned alive, and it was not long before Jews were banished from Belgium altogether.

The event was known locally as the miracle of St. Gudule and was memorialized by an annual festival. The festival that took place in 1820, the 450th anniversary of the alleged desecration, was especially great, lasting eight days, and was commemorated by the issuance of this medal.

The medal shown above is a variant of one published by Kirshner where the medal's reverse more explicitly states in the legend (translated from the French), "Jubilee 1820 in Reparation for the Outrages of the Holy Hosts in the Year 1370."

It is of interest that in 1870, while preparing for the next festival, a series of publications exposed inaccuracies and falsifications in the sources upon which the blood libel took place, causing Pope Pius IX to stop the commemoration of these festivals (Ben-Arieh).

Concurrent with this, a different type of medal was issued, one that may be viewed as philo-Semitic. This medal was also made in Belgium, which at that time had become more tolerant toward Jews (the mayor of Brussels was Jewish). It showed on the obverse two Jews being burned, one of whom had the features and stance of Jesus on the Cross. The medal's reverse was inscribed: AIn 1370 Jews were taken and burned live at Brussels under the pretext of having profaned the Host; their property was confiscated and all their co-religionists proscribed. It is the 500th year of a cruel act of spoliation and intolerance that the priests wished to celebrate in great pomp this year. Popular sentiment has repulsed it with energetic indignation. (Friedenberg, p. 22)

Continued

Continued

Converting Jews to Christianity

Efforts to convert Jews to Christianity began soon after the formal establishment of this religion and continue to this day.

Throughout the seventh century, Jews were flogged, executed, had their property confiscated, forbidden to trade and forcibly baptized (such converted Jews were later called conversos). This reached a peak during the Christian Inquisitions in Spain and Portugal in the 15th and 16th centuries. Then, as in more recent periods, many Jews were suspected of not truly converting to Christianity (these secret Jews were called marranos, a term of abuse derived from the Spanish word for “swine”) but rather were accused of still adhering to their original faith.

These individuals were dealt with severely, in some cases by burning them alive. The most notorious individual during this period was the Dominican prior and Grand Inquisitor, Tomás de Torquemada, who in the 15th century condemned thousands of conversos, men and women, to their death for secretly practicing Judaism.

Tomas de Torquemada (1420 to 1498)

Later, in 18th century Italy, Pope Pius VI published an Edict on the Jews, which led directly to their forced baptisms. Even more recently, now in Britain, it is said that Benjamin Disraeli, born a Jew, could never have become Prime Minister had he not been baptized, in effect “encouraging” his conversion (Johnson).

The issue of conversion affected Jews in many walks of life. A case in point is in the field of music. During the late 19th century and extending into the 20th century, there were many examples of Jews who, by desire or by necessity or coercion, converted to Christianity. Felix Mendelssohn was a convert. Johann Straus, founder of the famous Viennese musical family, was a son of

Continued

Useless Baptism Medal or “Taufmedaille” by Christian Wermuth: Germany, ca. 1700, bronze (silvered) struck medal, 43mm Ref: Kirschner 2; Friedenberg 13/14 and 113; Fieweger 76.

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

a Baptized Jewish innkeeper. Gustav Mahler, in order to be appointed head of the court opera in Vienna had to convert to Catholicism. Arnold Schönberg was born a Jew but raised as a Catholic. The list goes on (Johnson).

Not surprisingly, medals were produced that relate even to this specific issue. One such medal, the so-called Useless Baptism Medal, struck about 1700 and shown above, relates to the efforts to convert Jews to Christianity and suggests that this Baptism was insincere.

As may be seen, on the medal’s obverse a priest with a prayer book is pouring water on the head of a kneeling Jew who has a millstone around his neck; an executioner is standing behind the Jew about to push him into the water. The legend in German is translated as “Thus He Remains Innocent.”

The reverse legend may be translated as “Jew rarely becomes a Christian unless he has done something wrong. He does it only for the money to avoid serious punishment, for if he would steal he would be punished too harshly.”

On the rim is an additional engraving “When the mouse eats the cat, then a Jew becomes a true Christian.” As Baptismal medals are often given to the family to celebrate this event in the Christian community, this medal, also called the Mockery Medal, apparently was made to mock the “false” baptisms of Jews.

A related medal, this one struck to “honor” Jews who converted to Christianity, was issued in 1887, and shows on the obverse a Star of David with “Jehovah” in Hebrew with the legends “Christ in You; The Hope of Glory; Holy is His Name” while the reverse shows a Christian cross with Hebrew legends, translated as “Father Glorify Thy Name.”

A medal that is just tangentially related to the conversion of Jews is that by the German medallist Karl Goetz, who made a large number of satirical medals in the early 20th century (Kienest 1967).

This piece appears to celebrate the

Continued

At right: Conversion medal, 1887. Bronze struck medal, semi-oval, 33 x 45mm.

Image courtesy
William Rosenblum

Below, right: German U-Boats in America by Karl Goetz, Germany, 1916, cast iron medal, 58 mm (Kienast 185)

Image courtesy
Busso Peus Nacht

Continued

work done by the Reuters News Agency but has negative overtones. On the obverse can be seen a telegraph pole with a double head of Jewish caricatures speaking “Reuter clamor” (referring to the panic reports by the English news agency.) The reverse shows three animated men discussing the issue in front of an American flag, with the inscription translated as “Schemers at work.” The medal refers to the purported role the Reuters News Agency played in spreading false information about the German U-boats used in the World War. This news service was founded by Paul Julius Reuter.

Reuter, whose father was a rabbi, was born in Germany as Israel Beer Josaphat, but after moving to England, like a number of other Jews of that period, converted to Christianity and changed his name to Reuter.

A medal related to Shabbatai

Tzvi is another piece alluding to the forced conversion of Jews to a different religion. In this case the medal, which is directed toward the followers of the Jewish-born Shabbatai Tsvi, ridicules his conversion to Islam. This satirical medal was issued by Christian Wermuth in 1696, twenty years after Tsvi's death.

Continued

Continued

Shabbatai Tzvi (also seen as Sabbetai Zevi and others) (1626 to 1676) was a Turkish-born Sephardic Rabbi who, at age 22 in 1648, started declaring to his followers that he was the long-awaited Jewish Messiah.

This assertion was supported by Nathan of Gaza, who declared Shabbatai Tzvi to be the Messiah, and is based, in part, on Tzvi's supposed birth date, which according to Jewish legend is the date of the destruction of both Temples and also the date 'prescribed' in some traditions for the birth of the Messiah. He apparently suffered from manic-depressive illness, and during his manic phase he had "illuminations" whereby he believed he could communicate with God.

As history has shown in other cases, many religious Jews interpreted these visions as evidence of his genuineness as the Messiah, rather than the acts of lunacy.

The image shown on this page is from a manuscript published in 1666, the year Shabbatai Tzvi converted to Islam. On the upper panel, an image of Shabbatai Tzvi Enthroned ; a page from the Jewish publication Tikkun depicting Shabbatai Tzvi crowned as the messiah. Amsterdam, 1666.

Library of Congress

Shabbatai Tzvi is seen seated on a throne, holding a scepter. Four cherubs support aloft a large crown marked in Hebrew "The Crown of Tzvi."

The throne is guarded by 12 Lions of Judah, surrounded by eight worshipful disciples. On the steps leading to the throne is inscribed "In Those Days and at this Time, I Will Cause a Shoot of Righteousness to Grow up unto David; and He Shall Execute Justice and Righteousness in the Land" (Jeremiah, 33:15). Below the steps, in large Hebrew letters is written “Tikkun” (a prayer book of daily readings and the source of publication of the image).

Continued

Continued

In the lower panel, a larger-than-life Shabbatai Tzvi is portrayed seated at a round table with 12 apostles, behind whom is a crowd of his followers. The Hebrew words below read, “Messiah the Son of David Has Come.”

The reference to David alludes to the prophesy that the Messiah will be a descendent of the biblical King David (in this case suggesting it is Shabbatai Tzvi).

During this period Jews were particularly receptive to the coming of a Jewish Messiah as the persecutions and expulsions of the Jews in the 15th century during the Spanish Inquisition were still fresh in their memories.

Also during this same period Jews were being persecuted in Russia, which had a long history of anti-Jewish oppression. In 1479 Russia evicted Jews from their territory and prevented them from immigrating there.

Later, during the lifetime of Shabbatai Tzvi, in 1648-1649, there was an especially notorious pogrom in the Ukraine where tens of thousands of Jews were barbarously murdered; only those who converted to the Russian Orthodox faith were allowed to survive (Dubnow 2000).

It was against this background that Shabbatai Tzvi rose to prominence, as the Jews were ripe for the coming of a Messiah. Shabbatai traveled throughout Europe and gained a wide following. However, because he was developing such a large number of adherents and was creating a danger to the establishment, the Ottoman Sultan Mehmed IV gave Shabbatai Tzvi and his followers the choice of death or conversion to Islam.

He chose the latter and at the age of 40, Shabbatai Tzvi converted to Islam along with many of his disciples. As a result of his conversion and for being revealed as a false Messiah, his name became disdained in the Jewish community. Muslims and Christians joined in ridiculing him and his followers. (For more on Shabbatai Tzvi, see Abramson 2012).

There is an interesting medal, shown on next page, with a number of somewhat obscure allusions, employing both biblical themes and the writings of ancient Roman poets to convey its message. Some refer indirectly to Shabbatai Tzvi.

On the obverse can be seen a mountain being struck by lightning and which is surrounded by ominous looking, fantastical

Continued

Shabbatai Tzvi Medal by Christian Wermuth, Germany, 1696, Bronze struck medal, 43mm. Ref: Kirschner 32; Feille 3429 and plate XI; Friedenber pp.77/78 and 139.

Image courtesy Alex Ben-Arieh

Continued

creatures, including snakes, a lion and other beasts.

Inscribed on the mountain is “MONTES ESAV” (Mount Esau) and on the lower part a citation from the books of Zachariah and Obadiah. To the right is an alchemist striking an anvil over a furnace. The legend in Latin reads “Six Days of Labor, Worse Times,” a sentiment that is contrasted on the reverse by “Sabbath, the Seventh Day, Better Times.” The Latin inscription around is translated as “The State of the Church Today Is Most Flourishing.” The exergue below reads CARDU’ ET SPINIS FLORET / PALIURUS ACUTIS. Ralph Rosen points out that this is a near transcription of Virgil Eclogues 5.39 (in the context of the death of Daphnis), which is: CARDUUS ET SPINIS SUR-

GIT PALIURUS ACUTIS (... the Thistle and the Thorn with its Sharp Spikes Rises up).

This refers to a plant sometimes called by Christians the “thorn of Christ” or “Jerusalem thorn.” On the medal, Wermuth changes SURGIT (rises up) to FLORIT (blooms).

On the reverse of this medal is a mountain on which stands a lamb with a banner (representing Shabbatai Tzvi), while a dove, holding an olive branch, flies overhead. Rays of light from the sun shine from above and herds of sheep (representing his followers) stand around the base of the mountain. Around is the legend SABBATISMVS POPVLO DEI RELICTVS. HEBR.IV.9 (a Latin translation of Hebrews 4.9, meaning “Sabbath rest for the people of God”). The Latin legend in the exergue reads: AS-

Continued

Continued

PICE VENTURO LATENTUR
UT OMIA SECLO.

Rosen points out that this is a slightly mistranscribed version of Virgil Eclogues 4.52, which should read in the Latin: AS-
PICE, VENTURO LAETEN-
TUR UT OMNIA SAECLO
(See How Everything Rejoices in the Age That Is about to Come.)

Other legends read “Shabat
(Sabbath), the Seventh Day Better Times” and “Shabat Treasure Chest Still Kept Back from God’s People.”

The various legends allude indirectly to Shabbatai Tzvi, using biblical quotations referring to the Sabbath in mockery of the name Shabbatai, a type of contrivance Wermuth has used with other of his anti-Semitic medals.

Given Wermuth’s other related works, another possible reason for this medal’s creation may have to do with the Ottoman
Empire’s decline at the hands of Christian Europe at this time.
With his references to passages in the Old and New Testament on this medal, Wermuth may have interpreted religious meanings for the Ottoman decline
(Ben-Arieh). □

*END PART I of this multi-part feature story by Benjamin Weiss.
Read more in upcoming issues of
The Shekel!*

Medal Collectors of America

Medal Collectors of America is an organization of collectors of historical and art medals. The award-winning MCA Advisory is included with membership.

Membership • $55.00 Print Edition • $25.00 E-Advisory

MCA • c/o Barry D. Tayman • 3115 Nestling Pine Court • Ellicott City, MD 21042

WWW.MEDALCOLLECTORS.ORG

SHOULD THIS ELECTRONIC GENIUS

BE IN THE JEWISH-AMERICAN HALL OF FAME?

BY MEL WACKS

As Director of the Jewish-American Hall of Fame, one of my duties is to vet our prospective honorees — to make sure that they are both Jewish and American.

It would seem that Charles Proteus Steinmetz would be a no brainer. After all, Wikipedia indicates that “was born on April 9, 1865 as Karl August Rudolph Steinmetz into a Jewish family in Breslau, Province of Silesia,” and he has an entry in the 1971 edition of the Encyclopaedia Judaica.

But when I tried to find something “Jewish” about Steinmetz, pickings were very thin. Here’s all that I found:

“Among The things he had to play with were some wooden building blocks.

Continued

An April 23, 1921 photograph of Albert Einstein, center left, with Charles Proteus Steinmetz, center right, during a tour of the Radio Corporation of America wireless telegraph office in Brunswick, New Jersey, along with leading RCA scientist and officers as well as engineers and scientists from the General Electric Company, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and the Western Electric Company.

Continued

His grandmother, who was rather religious-minded, told him about King Solomon's temple. So one day he carefully gathered all the information he could about this structure and set about making one for himself.

"When it was done, evening had come and the interior of the temple was quite dark. This didn't agree with little Karl's Ideas of ancient magnificence so he ran into the kitchen and got a candle, which he lighted and placed in the temple's main hall. The Light streamed out through the windows and he felt that at last he had made a satisfactory residence for the God of Israel." (The Life of Charles Proteus Stein- metz by Jonathan Norton Leonard, Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, NY, 1929.)

Steinmetz's grandmother's maiden name was seemingly Jewish - Gawenski - perhaps derived from the shtetl Gaveni or the Gavya river.

And there is another tantalizing tidbit from Leonard's book: "When five years old [Steinmetz] studied Latin and studied it desperately. At seven he studied Greek and sometimes Hebrew."

What Polish kid studies Hebrew - unless he is Jewish?

Here is another perspective:

"The philosopher Isiah Berlin liked telling the story of Charles Steinmetz ... walking past Temple

Continued

Charles Proteus Steinmetz working with Thomas Alva Edison.

Continued

Emanu-El on Fifth Avenue with Otto Kahn, the assimilated Jewish financier.

“Kahn said, ‘I used to attend services there.’ Steinmetz replied, ‘I used to be a hunchback.’

“Being a Jew was like being a hunchback, Berlin would say, with each Jew reacting differently to his hump, some pretending they had no hump, others glorifying in theirs, while a third group, the timid ones, wore cloaks to conceal their contours.” (A Matter of Dignity, Changing the World of the Disabled by Andrew Potok, Bantam Dell, New York, NY, 2002.)

Indeed, Charles Proteus Steinmetz lived his life in America as a non-Jew. His friends included the notorious anti-Semite Henry Ford and the sometimes anti-Jewish

Another version of the IEEE Steinmetz medal.

Thomas Alva Edison.

But a science colleague, who highly esteemed the work of Steinmetz, was Albert Einstein.

There is a letter in the Jewish Archives from Rabbi Michael M. Szenes of Congregation Gates of

Continued

The Charles Proteus Steinmetz medal of the IEEE, established in 1979 by the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers.

Continued

Heaven in Schenectady, New York dated May 22, 1964, stating that a member of his congregation had “once wrote to Mr. Steinmetz and received the reply Mr. Steinmetz was ‘not of the Jewish faith’.”

Of course both of these statements can be correct if Steinmetz considered himself as an agnostic or atheist.

But apparently he didn’t. In a letter dated February 24, 1944 from Neil Reynolds, Consultant-Editorial Products, General Electric, Reynolds writes “I, too, have heard people say that Dr. Steinmetz had a Jewish ancestry, but have never seen any evidence. During his early days in Schenectady, he apparently had no religious affiliation. But when a Unitarian Society was formed ... he was instrumental in the founding, and the present Unitarian church there counts him among its founders. My own theory is that, like many German families in pre-Hitler days, if the Steinmetz family, on either side, had a Jewish ancestor – that mid-19th century members might not have been aware of it.

U.S. postage stamp issued in 1983.

“Also the German socialists of the period held religious orthodoxy of any variety in pretty low esteem. And apparently Steinmetz’s dedication to socialism ... [verged] on a pseudo-religious fanaticism.” (Thanks to Kevin Proffitt, Senior Archivist for Research and Collections, American Jewish Archives for finding this letter.)

Steinmetz was also featured in “Credo: Unitarians and Universalists of Yesteryear Talk About Their Lives and Motivations” by Don McEvoy, where the author indicates (with no references) that the Steinmetz family was “nominally Lutherans” and that he “was confirmed at age thirteen.”

The Reynolds’ letter does a fine job of summing things up - that Steinmetz evidently felt no Jewish identity and moreover identified with another religion. But what about his inclusion in the Encyclopaedia Judaica, Wikipedia, etc. as “Jewish”?

Continued

Continued

Is a Jew who converts still Jewish?

Zalman Nelson writes in www.chabad.com in a column titled “Is a Jew Who Converts Still Jewish?”

“Throughout the Tanach [an acronym of the first Hebrew letter of each of the Masoretic Text’s three traditional subdivisions: Torah (‘Teaching,’ also known as the Five Books of Moses), Nevi’im (‘Prophets’) and Ketuvim (‘Writings’)], we find Jews breaking every facet of their covenant with G-d, joining and forming all sorts of idolatrous cults and heathen practices.

“Yet when the prophets chide them, they are called ‘My people, Israel’ ... Apparently, Jewishness is about neither religion nor race. Unlike a race, you can get in, but unlike religion, once you’re in you can’t get out ... once you are a part of this people, you are the entire people. As Israel is eternal, so your bond with them is irreversible, unbreakable and eternal.”

So, after all of this extensive research, the answer to the question “Could Charles Proteus Steinmetz be in the Jewish-American Hall of Fame?” is “I’m not sure.”

What do you think? I would Steinmetz refused to work unless he had access to cigars. His bosses backed down.

Charles Proteus Steinmetz at 1915 engineer’s convention in Cincinnati, Ohio.

welcome your comments by email (directorjahf@yahoo.com), phone (818-225-1348) or letter (Mel Wacks, Director JAHF, 5189 Jeffdale Ave., Woodland Hills, CA 91364). ☐

CHARLES PROTEUS STEINMETZ

1865-1923

Charles Steinmetz immigrated to the United States in 1889 but was almost denied entry.

Steinmetz was almost turned away because he was a dwarf and the immigration officers considered Steinmetz medically unfit. Luckily, a traveling companion vouched that Steinmetz was a rich mathematical genius.

After arriving in United States, Steinmetz was hired by a small electrical firm owned by Rudolf Eickemeyer in Yonkers, N.Y. Eickemeyer saw the brilliance in Steinmetz and tutored him in the practical applications of electrical engineering, providing him with a research laboratory where Steinmetz developed the law of hysteresis also known as Steinmetz's Law.

According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, "the law of hysteresis deals with the power loss that occurs in all electrical devices when magnetic action is converted to unusable heat.

"Until that time the power losses in motors, generators, transformers, and other electrically powered machines could be known only after they were built. Once Steinmetz had found the law governing hysteresis loss, engineers could calculate and minimize losses of electric power due to magnetism in their designs before starting the construction of such machines."

In 1892, Steinmetz presented a paper on the law of hysteresis to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. The paper was well received and at the age of 27, Charles Steinmetz had become a recognized expert in the field of electrical engineering.

After studying alternating current for a number of years, Charles Steinmetz patented a "system of distribution by alternating current" (A/C power), on January 29, 1895.

This was the world's first three phase alternating current generator, a significant invention that helped move forward the electrical power industry in the United States.

Steinmetz was fond of cigars and he used to walk around the workshops at GE talking to people and smoking a cigar.

Then the Management decided to introduce a "No Smoking" rule. Steinmetz just carried on as usual, so an official came up to him and said, "Mr Steinmetz, we have a new rule. Would you mind putting out that cigar?"

The great man replied, "No cigars, no Steinmetz!" Steinmetz stayed.

STEINMETZ AN ENGINEERING GIANT

Steinmetz spent most of his later career working for the General Electric Company in Schenectady, New York.

In 1902, Steinmetz retired to take a teaching position at Schenectady's Union College.

General Electric later called on Steinmetz to return as a consultant by Henry Ford, after a very complex system broke and the General Electric technicians failed to fix it.

Steinmetz agreed to return for the consulting work. He examined the broken system, found the malfunctioning part, and marked it with a piece of chalk.

Charles Steinmetz submitted a bill to General Electric for $10,000 dollars. Henry Ford was miffed at the bill and asked for an itemized invoice.

The invoice is summarized below.

This medal was sculpted by Henry Berge and produced by Medallic Art Company in a 2-1/2" size in both bronze and silver in 1973. It was used as an award by General Electric.

Photo courtesy Medallic Art Company.

At the time of his death, Charles Proteus Steinmetz had written 38 peer-reviewed papers for the IEEE journal and held more than 200 patents.

Charles Steinmetz died on October 26, 1923. ▢

Itemized Invoice, as requested by Henry Ford:

1. Making chalk mark $1

2. Knowing where to place it $9,999

/s/ Charles Proteus Steinmetz

A.I.N.A. MARKETPLACE

The Pennsylvania Association of Numismatists (PAN) is a non-profit educational state organization founded in 1978 consisting of individuals and coin clubs throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the United States.

PAN membership is open to any individual or club interested in the study and collection of coins, currency, medals, tokens, and related material. The cost is $12 per calendar year (clubs are free). You will receive our journal, The Clarion published three times per year and the PAN eNEWS, a free electronic newsletter.

PAN Coin Shows and Conventions occur every spring in early May and fall in late October at the Monroeville Convention Center, 209 Mall Blvd, Monroeville, PA 15146. There are more than 130 tables and 100 dealers eager to buy, sell, or trade coins, paper money, tokens, medals, gold, silver, and bullion.

PAN
1985 Lincoln Way
Suite 23 #225
White Oak, PA 15131

email: pancoins@gmail.com

website: www.pancoins.org

@pancoinsPAN

Society of Israel Philatelists, Inc.

Dr. Benjamin Wallace 24917 Hazelmere Road
Beachwood, OH, 44122-3238

	Dues
USA	Canada/Mexico	All Others
$30.00	$34.00	$43.00

The Society of Israel Philatelists is a nonsectarian cultural and educational organization dedicated to the study and collecting of all philatelic items related to the Holy Land.

The journal, The Israel Philatelist, is published 6 times a year.

Coins of the Holy Land:

The Abraham and Marian Sofaer Collection at the American Numismatic Society and the Israel Museum

American Numismatic Society Publications

Hardcover, 2 Volumes,
Vol. 1: 344 pp. Vol. 2: 244 pp., 238 plates
ISBN: 978 089722 283 9 (complete 2 volume set)
List Price: US $190
ANS Member Price: US $133
Ancient Coins in North American Collections 8 (ACNAC 8) 2013

The Abraham and Marian Sofaer collection consists of 4,000 coins and related objects produced by the peoples who inhabited the Holy Land from the Persian period in the 5th and 4th centuries BCE through the Crusader Kingdom in the 13th century of the modern era. Assembled over more than 30 years, the collection contains gold, silver, and bronze coins of the Persians, Greeks, Samaritans, Jews, Nabataeans, Romans, Byzantines, Arabs, and Crusaders.

The book was written by Ya'akov Meshorer with Gabriela Bijovsky and Wolfgang Fischer-Bossert, and edited by David Hendin and Andrew Meadows.

For more information or to order your copy of this book: visit our web store at:
<http://numismatics.org/Store/ACNAC8> or call Membership at 212-571-4470 ext. 117

75 Varick St., fl. 11
New York, NY 10013

t. 212-571-4470
f. 212-571-4479
www.numismatics.org

David Hendin's GUIDE to BIBLICAL COINS

From your favorite dealer,
the publisher, or Amazon.com

Amphora • P.O. Box 805 • Nyack, NY 10960

AmphoraCoins@aol.com

IRA & LARRY GOLDBERG

AUCTIONEERS

Accepting consignments of Ancient, World and U.S. Coins for our three major auctions held each year. Specializing in Ancient Judean Coins. Member PNG, Life Members ANA. A family tradition since 1931.

350 S. Beverly Dr., #350 • Beverly Hills, CA 90212 • (800) 978-2646 • Fax (310) 551-2626

Visit our website: www.goldbergcoins.com

WILLIAM ROSENBLUM/RARE COINS

P.O. Box 785, Littleton, CO 80160-0785

Tel 720-981-0785 Fax 720-981-5345

www.rosenblumcoins.com - bill@rosenblumcoins.com

For the past 30 years we have been the world's leading dealer in all aspects of Ancient Judaea, Israel, Palestine and Judaica (including the Holocaust) as related to coins, medals, banknotes, tokens, etc. Life Member of ANA, former member Board of Directors of AINA, Member International Association of Professional Numismatists.

THE TOKEN AND MEDAL SOCIETY (TAMS)

Publishes a bimonthly journal, has a library available to members, and an annual meeting at the ANA. TAMS and AINA jointly sponsor the Ben Odesser Award for the Best Article in "The Shekel." Dues are $25 (U.S.) and $30 (non-U.S.). Send to TAMS, c/o Mark Lighterman, 5224 W. State Rd 46, No. 408, Sanford, FL 32771.

The Highland Mint produces medals of top quality at a very reasonable cost. They have produced medals for the Jewish-American Hall of Fame and are the official minter for the annual AINA medals. Contact Vince Bohbot, Vice-President, at (800) 544-6135 and tell him that you are a member of AINA to get a special deal.

The SHEKEL

NEEDS YOU!

SHARE THE SHEKEL

THE JOURNAL OF ISRAEL AND JEWISH HISTORY AND NUMISMATICS

GIVE A FULL YEAR OF THE SHEKEL FOR JUST $25 ($10 FOR JUNIORS).
AND EVERY TIME THE RECIPIENT RECEIVES A COPY HE/SHE WILL THINK OF YOU.

THE SHEKEL IS ENTERTAINING & INFORMATIVE FOR THOSE WITH A LOVE OF HISTORY, ART, JUDAICA, THE HOLY LAND AND/OR COLLECTING.

GIVE A GIFT AINA MEMBERSHIP AND THE RECIPIENT WILL NOT ONLY GET A FULL YEAR OF THE SHEKEL BUT ALSO THE AINA MEDAL AND A GIFT CARD.

Step 1: Indicate your name and address

Step 2: Indicate the name and address of each gift recipient

Step 3: Include check or credit card number & expiration date for $25 per gift membership in USA or Israel, $35 per gift membership elsewhere, $10 per junior gift membership (indicate age under 20).

Step 3: Mail to AINA, P.O. Box 20255, Fountain Hills, AZ 85269.

Or call (818) 225-1348.

Bank Note Reporter
1882 Gold Certificates top FUN sale

NUMISMMASTER.com
POWERED BY KRAUSE PUBLICATIONS

World Coin News
Krause Publications

France wins Coin of the Year

Numismatic News

High demand, higher price

U.S. COIN PRICES

Coins

TOP-NOTCH
QUARTER
BUYS

SEATED AND BARBER
COINS IN FOCUS

1893
SABILLA
FIRST COMMEM
QUARTER

DRAPED BUST
SEMS

THE HOBBY LEADER IN THE WORLD OF NUMISMATICS

KRAUSE PUBLICATIONS

MAGAZINES

Our veteran editors bring you such respected publications as Numismatic News, World Coin News, Bank Note Reporter and Coins Magazine.

BOOKS

Our expert price analysts publish must-have reference books like the Standard Catalog line of world coin and paper money books, as well as U.S. Coin Digest and North American Coins & Prices.

DIGITAL PRODUCTS

Our latest products allow you to enjoy price guides as never before, with greater portability, photo enlargement, and individual page printing capabilities.

ONLINE

NumisMaster.com and NumismaticNews.com bring you the most up-to-date industry news and pricing, and our weekly email newsletters are must-reads.

SHOWS

Our Chicago Paper Money Expo and Chicago International Coin Fair make Chicago a must-stop for dealers and collectors.

*A wealth of information awaits
you at NumisMaster.com
and ShopNumisMaster.com

HERITAGE[®]

JUDAICA AUCTIONS

Proud to Honor Jewish History

Jewish War (66–70 AD), AR shekel (24mm, 13.34 gm, 10h)
The Shoshana Collection of Ancient Judean Coins
Sold for: $1,105,375

MARC CHAGALL, Fleurs et couple, circa 1948-52
Sold for: $448,125

Heritage Auctions has enjoyed the privilege of offering thousands of items documenting nearly 2,500 years of the history of the Jewish people through their coinage, literature and art.

In 2012, Heritage was chosen to offer the landmark Shoshana Collection of Ancient Judean Coins, resulting in a total of $9.1 million in prices realized for the two auctions alone.

By working with the most prestigious Judaica auction house in Israel, Heritage Auctions offers an unprecedented level of service to obtain the best possible evaluations and prices for your collection of Judaica. Please call to discuss growing or refining your collection today.

Inquiries: 877-HERITAGE (437-4824)

Erin Patzewitsch, Ext. 1575 | ErinP@HA.com

Always Accepting Quality Consignments in 39 Categories. Cash Advances Available.

Annual Sales Exceed $900 Million | 900,000+ Online Bidder-Members

3500 Maple Ave. | Dallas, TX 75219 | 877-HERITAGE (437-4824) | HA.com

DALLAS | NEW YORK | BEVERLY HILLS | SAN FRANCISCO | HOUSTON | PARIS | GENEVA

Paul R. Minshull #16591. BP 12-25%; see HA.com. 36817

THE WORLD'S LARGEST COLLECTIBLES AUCTIONEER

HERITAGE
AUCTIONS 